

The Advanced Manufacturing Sector

The advanced manufacturing sector is transforming due to the impact of the technological and green transitions. To continue to innovate and harness the potential of existing and emerging technologies, cooperation between industry and education operators is crucial. Tackling skills needs and labour shortages in the sector together is key to increasing Europe's competitiveness and growth.

History in the making

The LCAMP Alliance is in the process of being created in the context of the Erasmus+ Centers for Vocational Excellence project LCAMP - Learner Centric Advanced Manufacturing Platform for Centres of Vocational Excellence (CoVEs).

The project aims to support and empower regional Advanced Manufacturing Centres of Vocational Excellence (CoVE) to become more resilient, innovative and better equipped to train, upskill, and reskill young and adult students to successfully face the digital and green transitions.

Therefore the Alliance seeks to be a platform aiming to create partnerships for cooperation to advance skills in the industry.

Mission

The Alliance will bring together VET (Vocational Education and Training) providers, industry stakeholders and learners in the advanced manufacturing sector. It will operate with a learner-centric approach, meaning that it prioritises the needs and development of learners putting them at the forefront of its initiatives.

Goals

- ✓ to harness talent in Advanced Manufacturing
- ✓ to reduce skill gaps through education and training
- ✓ to promote capacity building and transfer knowledge and expertise among members
- ✓ to build a sustainable future for Advanced Manufacturing.
